www.bega.org.au

Nindila Training Centre is dedicated to the ongoing training and development of Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander peoples and strives to nurture and support students through their educational journey. Nindila offers various qualifications and uses a number of strategies tailored to individual learner needs. This includes smaller classes, and the provision of one-on-one support for students. Nindila is a Registered Training Organisation (RTO # 5729).

As part of making a difference in the lives of Aboriginal people, a new First Nations Health Worker Traineeship program has been led by the National Aboriginal Community Controlled Health Organisation.

It's great to "earn while you learn" – you can be employed at the Bega Clinic while completing your studies at Bega's Nindila Training Centre. When you finish your traineeship, you will be a qualified Aboriginal and/or Torres Strait Islander Health Practitioner.

Three things to love about Nindila Training Centre

1. We are committed to increasing the number of Aboriginal health professionals who possess qualifications relevant to the needs of clients serviced by Aboriginal Medical Services.
2. We aim to promote and protect the role of the Aboriginal Health Worker.
3. We provide professional development opportunities to non-Aboriginal health professionals working with Aboriginal clients, families and communities.

Apprenticeships and Training

Apprenticeships

- Typically take three or four years to complete.
- Traditionally cover skilled trade areas such as automotive and mechanical; construction; commercial cookery; landscaping; hairdressing; and engineering specialisations such as metal fabrication.
- Structured program with a combination of on the job and off the job training, where you gain hands-on skills and knowledge.
- Upon successful completion, apprentices become a qualified tradesperson.

Traineeships

- Can take between one to two years to complete.
- Offer a broader range of vocational and occupational choices, including early childhood education and care; business and management; accounting; aged care; beauty; and accounting.
- Provide hands-on skills and work experience and can improve your employment prospects and range of career choices.
- Upon successful completion, a trainee will receive a nationally recognised qualification in their chosen vocational area.

New Trade Training Workshop

A new $10 million trade training workshop is one of the state-of-the-art training facilities in Kalgoorlie-Boulder. The new Central Regional TAFE Heavy Plant and Engineering Trades Workshop, opened in 2024, expands capacity to train more skilled workers for local jobs in key industries, including the resources sector.

The $10 million project included the refurbishment of existing workshops at the Kalgoorlie-Boulder TAFE campus and $2.4 million worth of industry standard training equipment in the areas of plant mechanics, heavy auto and auto electrical trade disciplines. The project also provided computer-based simulators to support training in the areas of electrical engineering and electronics.

Three things to love about Central Regional TAFE

1 We offer over 300 courses from Certificate I to Advanced Diploma level, traineeships and apprenticeships, as well as a variety of short courses. Training is often flexible and can be full-time, part-time and online.

2 We offer a variety of payment options including payment plans, a fantastic scholarship program, and several student support services.

3 Our priority is to ensure that we offer training that is needed in our community. This includes customised training solutions for businesses or workplaces. If you can't see a course or qualification you are after, get in touch and we will do our best to make it happen.

Department of Rural Health

Building 703, 117 Egan Street, Kalgoorlie WA 6430
(08) 9088 6033
UDRH@curtin.edu.au

University Departments of Rural Health are academic centres based in rural and remote Australia funded via the Commonwealth's Rural Health Multidisciplinary Training program.

Established in 2023 at Curtin's Kalgoorlie Campus, the Goldfields University Department of Rural Health (GUDRH) aims to strengthen the supply, capability, and impact of healthcare graduates in the Goldfields region and in doing so help address healthcare disparities in our rural communities. The focus of the GUDRH is multifaceted and includes:

- Providing health science students from Perth and across Australia with enriching and rewarding placement experiences throughout the Goldfields region.
- Increasing access to health care careers for people of the Goldfields.
- Fostering equity of access to tertiary education by developing mentoring and support programs to students.
- Supporting the enhancement of local health professionals' capabilities.
- Conducting rurally relevant research that stems from the needs of, and aims to benefit, Goldfields communities.

The GUDRH prioritises education in the area of Aboriginal health and wellbeing, culturally safe ways of working, and the place of traditional medicine, to help support improved health outcomes for our Aboriginal communities.

Three things to love about GURDH

1 We aim to ignite a passion for rural healthcare and cultivate a future workforce eager to contribute to the wellbeing of our region.

2 Through mentorship, academic guidance, and community support networks, we help empower students to navigate the challenges of their health care studies with confidence.

3 Our activities are underpinned by interprofessional learning to promote collaborative care practices, vital for maximising rural health care outcomes.

Three things to love about RCSWA

1 RCSWA has trained more than 1,900 students since its inception in 2002.

2 RCSWA has had significant success filling the WA rural workforce with graduates and in changing perceptions among medical students of the value of training and working outside of the city.

3 RCSWA has forged deep connections with rural and remote communities, especially as its 146-strong team of medical educators, researchers and administrators are locals themselves.

Three things to love about Curtin Medical School

1 Up to 25% of places are allocated to Western Australians from a rural background.

2 Graduates are well prepared to pursue further medical training in specialty fields.

3 Curtin offers a range of scholarships offering financial, academic and career support.

RCSWA is a joint venture between the medical schools of the University of Western Australia, Notre Dame Australia, and Curtin University. More than 100 medical students in their penultimate year are placed for a full academic year at one of 15 rural sites in WA each year, including Kalgoorlie, the school's administration headquarters.

About 20 final year students also spend a full academic year in Albany, Broome, Bunbury or Geraldton prior to graduating. A further 400 medical students in their final year are placed in rural towns in WA for short-term General Practice placements.

The school's ultimate mission is to train future rural doctors and academics to ensure equitable access to high quality, culturally appropriate healthcare for rural and remote Western Australians.

Our collaborative efforts focus on empowering individuals and enhancing the capacity of their families and communities. In the Goldfields our work covers Kalgoorlie-Boulder and the Yaaliku Region – Leonora, Laverton and Wiluna - and includes the Community Development Program (CDP), a remote employment and community development service

The Waalitj Foundation is proud to be a representative and service provider for Workforce Australia, which plays a crucial role in aiding Australians as they seek employment, transition between jobs, or pursue self-employment.

McGovern Foundation

108A Burt Street, Boulder WA 6432
admin@mcgovernfoundation.org.au
www.mcgovernfoundation.org.au

The McGovern Foundation is a targeted driver mentor program that provides practical support, mentoring and supervised driving to people that do not have the means to obtain a driver's licence, eliminating barriers and providing opportunities to education, training, employment and social participation.

The foundation's Wanderer Program sees trained driver mentors work from "start to finish" with participants to access safe, roadworthy vehicles; help with documents, permits and certificates; learn basic vehicle maintenance; complete 50 supervised hours with a driver mentor; complete the practical driving assessment; set up payment plans for infringement fines; and help pay off court fines through the Work Permit Development Scheme.

We welcome inquiries and registrations for the Kalgoorlie-Boulder region.
